Hand Crafted Beers

Unlike wine, beer is an entirely "made" product, brewing beer is considered an art as well as a science. The art is in manipulating a number of complex reactions between the water, grain, hops, and yeast along with the variables of quantity, type, temperature, and timing, all working together to create the subtle difference in the various styles of beer. At Millrose Brewing Company we create 7 barrel brews, or about 1900 glasses per brew.

COUNTRY INN ALE

Pale ale light in body and light in color. It's best with lamb, beef and grilled fish like salmon or swordfish.

DARK STAR LAGER

Dark in color, due to deep roasting, but light in body. Great with spicy foods, pastas, and seafood.

PRAIRIE PILSNER

A pale beer with a clean, crisp dryness, like chardonnay, it is easily adaptable to many dishes from simple seafood to poultry and veal.

PANTHER ALE

Strong amber ale. Well balanced malt and hops. Goes well with beef, poultry, or fresh seafood.
